Evidence, broadly construed, is anything presented in support of an assertion. This support may be strong or weak. The strongest type of evidence is that which provides direct proof of the truth of an assertion. At the other extreme is evidence that is merely consistent with an assertion but does not rule out other, contradictory assertions, as in circumstantial evidence.

Companies in the United States employ many processes in running their businesses. Laws from various sources affect these processes, so that the processes and administration of them are specialized. When company management does not acknowledge the need for common understanding and for specialization, the results are confusion, subsequent errors, and increased costs.
